

The autobiography of a Black man who has moved in the highest levels of American society discloses the facts of racism in American life, telling what it is and how it works on all of us